She is getting a bit heavier and is going to the vet soon to be checked for a chip and to get a check up. The person who's taking care of her isn't able to continue long-term because their dog is not cooperating but the cat seems to be good with the dog. She's been friendly with the entire office and we have watched her get skinnier over the last year and why we started posting her on Paws Cause. We eventually decided she needed to get some care which is why a coworker took her home. We're afraid she either is lost or her owners moved away, I'm hoping to find her home and crossing my fingers, she wasn't abandoned.
